

EARNST ARGUMENT AT THE ECONOMIC CLUB DINNER.

After saying that he was performing a promise three years old, a promise made to the late Edward B. Whitney, he told the Economic folk and their guests that it was just as well in the beginning of a discussion to know what it was they were seeking. The first answer, he said, was peace, but that was too indefinite. How was peace to be maintained when every nation in Europe is armed to the teeth because they are afraid they may be forced to war? Therefore, he continued, some means must be devised which can be substituted for war. The only thing he knew of as a workable substitute was an arbitral court of nations.

That was of course a long way ahead, meant arbitration by consent of all nations, with a certain degree of compulsion to the public opinion of all nations

Ask any diplomat
Lauren

level, at barometer, corrected to read to sea level, at 8 A. M., 30.39; 3 P. M., 20.43.

The thermometer yesterday, as recorded by the United States Weather Service, was as follows: The thermometer is shown in the annexed table:

	1911.	1910.		1911.	1910.
9 A. M.	31°	30°	9 P. M.	31°	30°
12 M.	30°	30°	12 P. M.	28°	30°
5 P. M.	26°	26°	10 15 P. M.	27°	31°

Lowest temperature, 27°; at 10 15 P. M.

WASHINGTON FORECAST FOR TO-DAY AND TO-MORROW.

For eastern New York, fair to day; cloudy and snow by to-morrow night; moderate north and northeast winds.

For New England, fair to day; increasing cloudiness and probably snow; moderate north and northeast winds.

For eastern Pennsylvania and Delaware, fair to day; snow or rain to-morrow; northeasterly and light to moderate night winds.

For New Jersey, fair to day; snow to-morrow; increasing north and northeast winds.

For the District of Columbia and Maryland, fair to day; snow or rain to-morrow; moderate north and northeast winds.

"Last summer I was visiting in New England at the home of ex-Gov. Draper," said Mr. Tall, when he had bowed to the good night and words of greeting. "I'm always visiting in New England. Just this time my host took me out to the town of Mendon, one of the second rank of towns that were pushed out against the Indians, and my host showed me a boulder where the names of twenty-seven men who had come there to live between 1650 and 1680 were inscribed. I found upon examination that I was descended from exactly seventeen of those men." The New Englanders seemed to be much pleased to hear that.

"Those forefathers of ours were men who came from England because they couldn't worship God as they pleased here;—there, but when they settled

TAFT HERE TO-DAY.

Brooklyn, however, was right there with her policemen. Deputy Commissioner Walsh had twelve uniformed men at the St. Felix street entrance to the Academy and when the President came out to ride

Fifth Avenue and 47th Street
New York

undel left an estate valued at $3,864,318. Attorneys Noble B. Judah and Donald S. Cumbull were the only persons heard. Both testified to having been witnesses to the merchant's will, which was executed September 26, 1910.

"Last summer I was visiting in New England at the home of ex-Gov. Draper," said Mr. Tall, when he had bowed to the good night and the words of greeting. "I'm always visiting in New England. Just this time my host took me out to the town of Mendon, one of the second rank of towns that were pushed out against the Indians, and my host showed me a boulder where the names of twenty-seven men who had come there to live between 1650 and 1680 were inscribed. I found upon examination that I was descended from exactly seventeen of those men." The New Englanders seemed to be much pleased to hear that.

"Those forefathers of ours were men who came from England because they couldn't worship God as they pleased in their own land. When they settled here, they said, 'We'll worship God as we please here, and we'll be satisfied.'"

PARK & TILFORD

Fifth Ave. & 26th Street And seven Branch Stores

Broadway and 62d Street

